

Marta Hubbard Retires!

As many of you already know, Marta Hubbard has decided to take her retirement after 30 years of service with the University of Texas System. She held several positions at UT Austin for about 15 years before "moving" downtown to System Administration. Her most recent work has been with the UT TeleCampus, where she was instrumental in its creation as well as in its growth and success. She is a past president of the Texas Distance Learning Association, and she has also served as chair of the System-wide Innovations in Online Learning Conference, hosted by the TeleCampus. Although she is retiring effective today, January 31, she will return to work with us part-time March through May in order to continue as chair of this year's conference. We don't expect to see her slowing down anytime soon.

It has been a wonderful experience working with Marta through these years, and although we will miss her work contributions, sense of humor, and friendly smile, we never say goodbye at the TeleCampus. Once you are with us, you are with us forever!

Please join us in wishing Marta a very happy and relaxing retirement!!
