

Online Undergraduate Courses: GenEd

University of Texas System campuses have collaborated to offer you general undergraduate curriculum courses online via the GenEd program. Regardless of which campus you are admitted to, you may take courses from the participating partner universities.

Courses are delivered via the UT TeleCampus, a central support unit for online education within the University of Texas System. TeleCampus-based online courses can be completed entirely at a distance and meet all of the same criteria as the onsite equivalent. Students will not be required to attend the campuses at any time.

The TeleCampus features an award-winning website similar in design to a traditional campus with admissions links, a digital library and student support services. Students interact via chat-rooms and Internet-based group activities and research projects. Courses run on a semester schedule in keeping with the academic calendars of the UT System.
